Stanford University
Graduate School of Business Master Plan
& Classroom Buildings
Stanford, CA

A Master Plan and Conceptual Design for a new Graduate School of Business campus at Stanford University on a 9.7 acre site in the middle of the Stanford campus contemplates 430,000 s.f. in a two phase plan. The Master Plan has created a framework for the development a new educational model that reconsiders the School's curriculum and transforms its culture and structure. The Plan has generated support in the form of several funding commitments totaling over $100M and the University has now taken steps to begin design of the new campus. The Steinberg Group is the Associate Architect.
